Look inside and learn what makes it tick. This course provides an introduction to current PC hardware by providing a hands-on look inside the computer. At the end of this course students will be able to identify basic terms, concepts, functions, and operations of personal computer systems. They will be able to identify and describe functionality of field replaceable units (FRU), identify common ports, associated cabling, and connections, identify hardware methods of upgrading system performance, assemble memory modules, system boards, processors, power supplies, adapter boards, storage devices, and multimedia devices.
